Important risk disclosure

This factsheet is for informational purposes only and is not intended as a recommendation to buy or sell any security.

Closed-end funds are traded on the secondary market through one of the stock exchanges. The Company's investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares may be worth more or less than the original cost. Shares of closed-end funds may trade above (a premium) or below (a discount) the net asset value (NAV) of the Company's portfolio. The Net Asset Value (NAV) is the value of an entity's assets less the value of its liabilities. The Market Price is the current price at which an asset can be bought or sold. There is no assurance that the Company will achieve its investment objective.

Foreign securities are more volatile, harder to price and less liquid than U.S. securities. They are subject to different accounting and regulatory standards, and political and economic risks. These risks are enhanced in emerging markets countries. Fixed income securities are subject to certain risks including, but not limited to: interest rate (changes in interest rates may cause a decline in the market value of an investment), credit (changes in the financial condition of the issuer, borrower, counterparty, or underlying collateral), prepayment (debt issuers may repay or refinance their loans or obligations earlier than anticipated), and extension (principal repayments may not occur as quickly as anticipated, causing the expected maturity of a security to increase).

The Company's use of leverage exposes the Company to additional risks, including the risk that the costs of leverage could exceed the income earned by the Company on the proceeds of such leverage. Additionally, in the event of a general market decline in the value of the Company's assets, the effect of that decline will be magnified in the Company because of the additional assets purchased with the proceeds of the leverage.
