For more detailed information about Morningstar's Analyst Rating, including its methodology, please go to: <http://corporate.morningstar.com/us/documents/MethodologyDocuments/AnalystRatingforFundsMethodology.pdf> The Morningstar Analyst Rating for Funds is a forward-looking analysis of a fund. Morningstar has identified five key areas crucial to predicting the future success of a fund: People, Parent, Process, Performance, and Price. The pillars are used in determining the Morningstar Analyst Rating for a fund. Morningstar Analyst Ratings are assigned on a five-tier scale running from Gold to Negative. The top three ratings, Gold, Silver, and Bronze, all indicate that our analysts think highly of a fund; the difference between them corresponds to differences in the level of analyst conviction in a fund's ability to outperform its Reference Index and peers through time, within the context of the level of risk taken over the long term. Neutral represents funds in which our analysts don't have a strong positive or negative conviction over the long term and Negative represents funds that possess at least one flaw that our analysts believe is likely to significantly hamper future performance over the long term. Long term is defined as a full market cycle or at least five years. Past performance of a security may or may not be sustained in future and is no indication of future performance. Fund managers' report

Background

The art of delusion and denial, irrefutably intrinsically ingrained in the populist rhetoric of the political world, appears increasingly to be permeating into the evolving global economic landscape in recent months. More specifically, severe economic stresses associated with ongoing cost of living increases caused by higher interest rates, higher debt servicing costs and declining real incomes continue to be dismissed as "normal" for the current phase of the global "economic" cycle. Yet from any objective analysis it becomes evident very quickly the current prevailing economic backdrop is arguably anything but normal. Tight labour markets suggest structural rigidities unaffordable mortgage financing suggests excessive exposures rather than just expensive debt; insolvent local and national governments reflect fiscal irresponsibility during periods of prosperity; persistent price inflation suggests corporate profiteering and excessive money printing rather than externally blamed supply shocks and covid legacies. And yet, suspiciously, all of this appears absent of credit quality deterioration and widespread bankruptcies so often the consequence of draconian interest rate tightening. Against such a backdrop, very little can nor should be accepted at face value.

Performance

Perceived by many to be the most important sector in the World's most important equity market, a handful of very large capitalisation technology companies in the United States continued to dominate market performance and investor psychology over the past month. The emergence of Artificial ^D Expressed as a percentage of total costs divided by average daily net assets for the year ended 31 December 2023. The Ongoing Charges Figure (OCF) is the overall cost shown as a percentage of the value of the assets of the Company. It is made up of the Annual Management Fee and other charges. It does not include any costs associated with buying shares in the Company or the cost of buying and selling stocks within the Company. The OCF can help you compare the annual operating expenses of different Companies.

^E The annual fee is charged at 0.5% of net assets (ie excluding gearing) up to £500 million, and 0.4% of Net Assets above £500 million.

^F Calculated using the Company's historic net dividends and month end share price.

^G Net gearing is defined as a percentage, with net debt (total debt less cash/cash equivalents) divided by shareholders' funds.

^H The 'Active Share' percentage is a measure used to describe what proportion of the Company's holdings differ from the Reference Index holdings.

Intelligence into the general lexicon, combined with exuberant expectations towards those global companies (predominately American) perceived to benefit most from its adoption fuelled widespread positivity and selective stock market strength. Momentum investors unequivocally worship new secular growth stories, be it fact or fiction, and AI continues to tick all their boxes. Portfolio performance over the period was influenced positively by semiconductor exposures to Broadcom, Samsung Electronics, Taiwan Semiconductor and BE Semiconductor, plus some robust total return contributions from healthcare companies Merck and Abbvie. Broad portfolio diversification was a constraint on capital performance in an environment of narrow technology-led market performance, but underlying earnings and dividends of portfolio holdings continued to match or exceed early expectations.

Activity

Over the month additional investment was made into recently established holdings, Diageo and Pernod Ricard. A new position was also initiated in Mercedes Benz Group in Germany, using funds from top-slices to BE Semiconductor and Broadcom.

Outlook

Priced for perfection, global equity markets in the developed world currently carry expectations that inflation is dead, that interest rates are about to dramatically decline, that bond yields will follow suit, that economies will enjoy soft landings and corporate earnings will remain unaffected throughout! With many such expectations distinctly "mutually exclusive", far from having their cake and eating it, investors are more likely to experience bouts of nauseating indigestion over the coming months. Whilst futile to speculate over the precise catalyst for such expectation deflation, the priority remains firmly focusing on delivering the investment mandate in what unquestionably is becoming a more hostile and detached environment. Towards such ends, the portfolio remains diversified in terms of geography, sector, industry and companies, with an emphasis on financially strong business that can grow and deliver dividends in whatever environment prevails.

The risks outlined overleaf relating to gearing, exchange rate movements and emerging markets are particularly relevant to this trust but should be read in conjunction with all warnings and comments given.

Important information

Risk factors you should consider prior to investing:

- The value of investments, and the income from them, can go down as well as up and investors may get back less than the amount invested.
- Past performance is not a guide to future results.
- Investment in the Company may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money within 5 years.
- The Company may borrow to finance further investment (gearing). The use of gearing is likely to lead to volatility in the Net Asset Value (NAV) meaning that any movement in the value of the company's assets will result in a magnified movement in the NAV.
- The Company may accumulate investment positions which represent more than normal trading volumes which may make it difficult to realise investments and may lead to volatility in the market price of the Company's shares.
- The Company may charge expenses to capital which may erode the capital value of the investment.
- Movements in exchange rates will impact on both the level of income received and the capital value of your investment.
- There is no guarantee that the market price of the Company's shares will fully reflect their underlying Net Asset Value.
- As with all stock exchange investments the value of the Company's shares purchased will immediately fall by the difference between the buying and selling prices, the bid-offer spread. If trading volumes fall, the bid-offer spread can widen.
- With funds investing in bonds there is a risk that interest rate fluctuations could affect the capital value of investments. Where long term interest rates rise, the capital value of shares is likely to fall, and vice versa. In addition to the interest rate risk, bond investments are also exposed to credit risk reflecting the ability of the borrower (i.e. bond issuer) to meet its obligations (i.e. pay the interest on a bond and return the capital on the redemption date). The risk of this happening is usually higher with bonds classified as 'sub-investment grade'. These may produce a higher level of income but at a higher risk than investments in 'investment grade' bonds. In turn, this may have an adverse impact on funds that invest in such bonds.
- Yields are estimated figures and may fluctuate, there are no guarantees that future dividends will match or exceed historic dividends and certain investors may be subject to further tax on dividends.
- The Company invests in emerging markets which tend to be more volatile than mature markets and the value of your investment could move sharply up or down.
